

Holidays at Home

Deb Strain

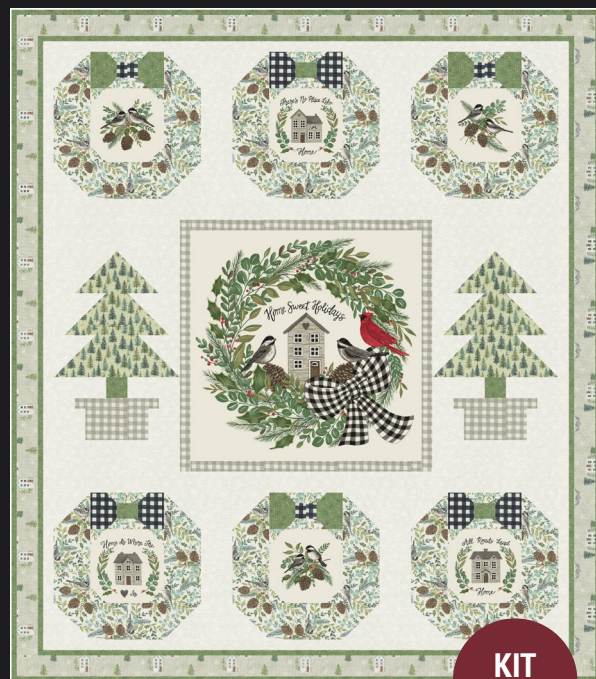

When the snow is falling, our woods become covered in white, with touches of green, brown and black. During these times, it is so special to see the different types of winter birds that come to visit. The brilliant red cardinal is easy to spot and every once in a while, we are able to catch a glimpse of sweet little chickadees twittering amongst the branches. They are certainly my favorite birds to paint and it is a genuine treat to see them near our home! Holidays At Home features both of these beloved birds, along with winter homes and the sentiments our family feels about HOME. Just like our woods, in winter, this collection is filled with winter greenery, pinecones, snow, birds and homes, all in greens, whites, grey, black and a touch of red. Because coming HOME for the holidays, or anytime, is special-just like seeing chickadees in the winter.
